ADVISORY GROUP MEMORANDUM #26

To: Advisory Group Members
From: Criminal Code Reform Commission (CCRC)
Date: October 3, 2019
Re: D.C. Code Statutory Penalties and Voluntary Sentencing Guidelines

Attached to this Memorandum are two spreadsheets relating to: 1) a “master list” of identified criminal statutes in the D.C. Code, their maximum imprisonment penalty, and the status of reform recommendations for the provision by the CCRC (Appendix A); and 2) a “VSG ranking” list of felony offenses ranked by severity in the D.C. Voluntary Sentencing Guidelines, along with other sentencing information (Appendix B). This memorandum discusses how the information in each spreadsheet was compiled, including any caveats or limitations.

I. MASTER LIST OF OFFENSES IN THE CURRENT D.C. CODE

The CCRC has compiled a “master list” of known criminal statutes in the current D.C. Code, attached as Appendix A. In addition to listing the citation (Columns A and B) and name (Column C) of identified criminal statutes, the list also includes: 1) the minimum and maximum imprisonment penalties for the offense (Columns D-F); and 2) the status of CCRC recommendations regarding the statutory provision (Column G).

Please note that the maximum imprisonment penalty in Column D is presented in the general¹ manner specified in the D.C. Code in terms of years, months or days. The maximum imprisonment penalty in Column E converts the Column D entry into months to facilitate sorting of the spreadsheet. Column G states the status of CCRC review of a statutory provision using a 1-5² rating. While this rating has been updated in October 2019, the CCRC’s plans for future work remain subject to change depending on agency resources and the agency’s sunset date.

² The meaning of the ratings are: 1 = Reform recommendations drafted; 2 = Draft planned for FY20 Q1-Q2; 3 = Draft planned for FY20 Q3-Q4; 4 = Draft planned for FY 21 Q1-Q2; 5 = No review plans.

Caveats and Background on the Compilation of the Master List

The master list does not represent a full CCRC review of the D.C. Code. In compiling the list, the CCRC³ relied on multiple sources and methods, updated over a period of many years. While it is the most comprehensive listing of District criminal offenses and related statutory provisions known to the CCRC, the master list is dated, incomplete, and likely undercounts⁴ the number of District crimes significantly. Here's why.

To begin, the CCRC was given a list of possible criminal statutes compiled by the Office of the Attorney General (OAG) and a list of possible criminal statutes compiled by staff at the Sentencing Commission. Unfortunately, the CCRC could not be completely sure of the accuracy of the information for a number of reasons: a) the precise methodology used to compile the lists is unknown; 2) the lists were created a number of years ago (pre-2015), meaning that newly created offenses were not included; and 3) the criteria for determining whether a statute was considered "criminal" were not available. Nevertheless, the OAG and Sentencing Commission lists provided a starting point in compiling a comprehensive list of criminal offenses. Because the OAG list appeared to be plainly over-inclusive in some references, the Sentencing Commission list was used as a starting point.

The CCRC then added offenses that were amended by the Fine Proportionality Act (FPA). The FPA creates a system of fines pegged to the maximum penalty of imprisonment for an offense. Because the FPA "makes fines for criminal offenses, with few exceptions, proportional," the FPA has a necessarily broad scope and amended a number of crimes. The CCRC therefore included all offenses that were amended by the FPA in the master list.

Still, the FPA only amended roughly 295 statutes, and could not be considered comprehensive. Even some offenses in Title 22 itself were not amended by the FPA. Accordingly, the CCRC searched Westlaw for any statute that contained the word "imprison."⁵ This yielded a list of 564 statutes, 189 of which were not present in the Sentencing Commission list plus the FPA list. The CCRC reviewed each of the 189 statutes and added offenses as appropriate. The CCRC performed an additional search for statutes containing the word "fine."⁶ This search yielded 983 statutes, which were additionally reviewed and added as appropriate.

⁴ As described below, what constitutes a "criminal" statute is often unclear. Hundreds of regulatory provisions in the D.C. Code include imprisonment penalties or other language that clearly indicates that they are criminal. However, hundreds of other regulatory provisions specify only a fine and do not, on their face, indicate if they are civil or criminal in nature. Whether the master list overcounts or undercounts criminal offenses depends significantly on how these fine-only regulatory provisions are characterized.

⁵ The CCRC used the following search in Westlaw Next: adv: TE(impris!). The root expander ("!") would include any statutes that have any variation on the root, "impris," including "imprison," "imprisoned," "imprisonment."

⁶ The CCRC used the following search in Westlaw Next: adv: TE(fine!).

This process provided a rough sense of the number of criminal statutes in the District, but the process was not complete. Many of the statutes referred to punishments, but the substantive offense was occasionally located in a separate or different statute. Throughout the process, the CCRC was required to decide what precisely to count as an offense. The problem of identifying what statutes constitute a crime is difficult, and it appears to be one encountered by others who have attempted to count the number of offenses in various jurisdictions.⁷

For purposes of creating the master list, the CCRC settled on a few rules to determine whether an offense counted as criminal or not. First, the CCRC counted any statute a violation of which provides punishment of imprisonment for any amount of time. Second, the CCRC counted any statute that referenced itself as a crime (e.g., with language like “It shall be an offense” or “It shall be a misdemeanor”).

Additionally, if a statute provided one penalty for any violation of an entire unit of the Code, the CCRC only counted the statute as one crime. This method clearly undercounts the total number of criminal offenses in the D.C. Code. For example, D.C. Code § 1-909.08 provides penalties for anyone who “willfully violates any provision of any section of this subchapter[.]” The subchapter referenced contains eight sections (excluding the penalty provision), and each contain many subsections. Of course, many of the subsections couldn’t possibly be violated in any meaningful sense: D.C. Code § 1-909.03(c) states in whole, “Summary plan descriptions for service and benefits accrued prior to July 1, 1997, are under the jurisdiction and control of the United States Secretary of the Treasury pursuant to the Retirement Protection Act.” It is difficult to imagine how one could violate such a provision.

Therefore, when the CCRC encountered a statute setting penalties for any violation of a chapter, subchapter or other unit, the CCRC only counted the penalty section in the master list. This necessarily created a low-range estimate of the number of offenses, and the conservative nature of the master list should be kept in mind when evaluating the data in this memorandum.

The CCRC also counted clearly differing degrees of offenses as separate offenses. The CCRC did not count, however, inchoate forms of offenses, nor did staff count sentencing enhancements as separate offenses.

Two additions were made to the master list which go beyond D.C. Code criminal offenses. First, for Title 22 of the D.C. Code only, entries were added to the master list for each statutory section containing a criminal or civil provision not already listed as an offense or offense penalty. For instance, D.C. Code § 22-2720, Tax for maintaining such nuisance [bawdy house], was added to the list. As the primary purpose of the master list is to map statutes potentially within the scope of the CCRC’s mandate (including the enactment of Title 22), inclusion of these Title 22 non-offense provisions provides a more complete view of CCRC current and future work. Secondly, entries were added to the master list for those crimes in the D.C. Municipal Regulations (DCMR), fewer than a dozen, that appear to have been charged in Superior Court in recent years. Strictly speaking then, the list includes a few non-D.C. Code offenses that have special practical importance.

II. FELONY OFFENSES RANKED BY SEVERITY IN THE D.C. VOLUNTARY SENTENCING GUIDELINES

The CCRC is providing in Appendix B an adapted version of the D.C. Sentencing Commission’s chart in its 2019 Voluntary Sentencing Guidelines Manual entitled, “APPENDIX C-I, SENTENCING CHART FOR FELONIES COMMITTED ON OR AFTER 5:00 p.m., AUGUST 11, 2000, ARRANGED IN ORDER BY D.C. CODE CITATION (2001).”⁸ The only adaptations made by the CCRC are the reformatting of the chart into a spreadsheet and the relocation of the chart’s footnotes to Column K of the spreadsheet. These adaptations were made to facilitate filtering and ordering of the spreadsheet by offense severity group. The Sentencing Commission’s chart includes a key as follows:

APPENDIX C-I

SENTENCING CHART FOR FELONIES COMMITTED ON OR AFTER 5:00 p.m., AUGUST 11, 2000 ARRANGED IN ORDER BY D.C. CODE CITATION (2001)

Use this Appendix to find the offense severity group, the maximum prison sentence and amount of supervised release the judge may/must impose initially under the Sentencing Reform Amendment Act of 2000. In some cases, the maximum sentence will depend on factors set forth in the statute. Please refer to the statute. Appendix C contains the same information in alphabetical order by common name. The offense severity is blank for enhanced versions of offenses. Those have the same offense severity score as the unenhanced offense. See Chapter 4 (Adjusting the Box).

ABBREVIATIONS:

"A"	means that an offense is a Class A felony. A person convicted of such an offense may be imprisoned not more than 5 years upon revocation of supervised release. See D.C. Code 24-403.01 (b)(7)(A).
"E"	means that the offense is subject to a statutory enhancement specific to the offense that raises the top of the Guidelines range. See Chapter 4 and Appendix H.
"M"	in the minimum column means mandatory minimum, a minimum that generally cannot be suspended. See Section 3.6.
"or SOR"	in the Supervised Release column means that the offense is necessarily a registration offense under D.C. Code § 22-4001 ⁵⁰ and that the judge may impose a greater term of supervised release up to the maximum period of sex offender registration to which the defendant is subject (ten years or life). See D.C. Code §§ 22-4001 (6), (8), 24-403.01 (b)(4).
"not < X"	in the minimum column means that if the judge imposes a sentence of imprisonment, he or she cannot impose a sentence of less than X. The judge may impose a sentence of X (or more) and MAY suspend execution of part or all of it.
"(30/40/60)"	that appears under "LWOR" [life without release] for several offenses and under "40" for carjacking means that the judge cannot impose a sentence in excess of the number in parentheses unless the jury finds an aggravating circumstance beyond a reasonable doubt.
"same term/fine"	means the same term or fine as the underlying or predicate offense.
"x the term/fine"	means the preceding number times the term or fine for the underlying offense.
"V" or "D"	in the Violent/Dangerous column means a crime of violence pursuant to D.C. Code 23-1331(4) or a dangerous crime pursuant to D.C. Code § 22-4501(2).
"w/a"	means an offense subject to D.C. Code § 22-4502 imposing additional penalties for committing a crime of violence while armed. See Hager v. United States , 791 A.2d 911 (D.C. 2002).

Revised July 2019

⁵⁰ Other offenses are registration offenses if the victim was a minor or if they involve a sexual act or sexual contact without consent or with a minor, or assaulting or threatening another with intent to commit a sexual act or sexual contact, or causing the death of another before, during or after such an act. See D.C. Code § 22-4001(8)(C) - (F). Those do not have "or SOR" in the Supervised Release column.

63 Defendants convicted of Firearm, Unlawful Possession of by a person with a prior conviction > 1 year with a criminal history score of 2 to 3.75 fall into Master Grid box 8:C with a sentencing range of 14 to 32 months incarceration, prison or short split permissible. However, because of the mandatory minimum 12-month sentence, a short split sentence is not permissible under the Guidelines. The court must sentence the defendant to at least 14 months to impose a Guidelines compliant sentence. If the court determines that a split sentence of 12 months incarceration or more, but less than 14 months, is appropriate, it may sentence the defendant accordingly, but this would constitute a departure from the Guidelines. The court should note the reason for the departure on the docket.

64 OADR (felony) is an enhancement, not a separate offense. However, it operates similarly to a separate offense. Therefore, the Guidelines treat it as if it were a separate offense when determining a defendant's applicable sentencing range in the instant case for which it was charged. 47 OADR (felony) is classified as a M9 offense only when it is a charge in the instant case. Because it is technically an enhancement, not a distinct separate offense, it should not be scored as part of a defendant's prior criminal history score.

52 Proportionate, not a Guidelines offense. See § 2.2.12 (Scoring Contempt Convictions).

Footnotes from VSG Tables
65 OCDR (felony) is classified as a M9 offense only when it is a charge in the instant case. Because it is technically an enhancement, not a distinct separate offense, it should not be scored as part of a defendant's prior criminal history score.
66 D.C. Code § 48-904.07 provides that a person who, for profit or benefit, enlists a minor to sell or distribute drugs in violation of D.C. Code § 48-904.01 (a), "shall be punished in the same manner as if that person directly sold or distributed the controlled substance" and that the penalties indicated here are "additional."
